

Clover Consulting International

Clover Consulting International is a division of one of the United Kingdom's largest farm vet Practices, Lambert Leonard & May. All consulting vets are involved in advising progressive dairy farms on preventative health and management strategies. The practice has a national reputation for excellence and runs a continuous training programme for young vets who aspire to be involved with modern progressive dairies.

Bill May BVSc CertCHP DBR MRCVS

Bill May qualified at Bristol University in 1991. He has since completed two Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons (RCVS) accredited programs of further post-graduate study into cattle health and bovine reproduction. In recent years he has been chief examiner for the RCVS Cattle Health & Production Certificate board. Bill is an excellent trainer and has given many public presentations.

Denis Leonard BVSc DBR MRCVS

Den qualified in 1993 from Liverpool University. He has a special interest in infectious disease and is a popular speaker and contributor to regional and national debates into the progression of livestock veterinary work. Den has completed his Diploma in Bovine Reproduction and is frequently asked to contribute to specialist dairy conferences and industry forums.

Owen Atkinson BVSc CertCHP MRCVS

Owen has always had a livestock focus and has interests in lameness, milk quality and nutrition. He has gained his RCVS Certificate in Cattle Health and Production and was formerly a resident cattle vet teaching veterinary students at Liverpool University. Owen is a popular speaker and is in regular demand to speak to local farming and veterinary groups on a variety of dairy topics.

Mike Christie BVMS DBR MRCVS

Mike qualified from Glasgow in Scotland in 1993 and has since completed his Diploma in Bovine Reproduction. For several years Mike was veterinary surgeon to the Cogent breeding unit and has developed expertise in embryo transfer and artificial breeding techniques. He is still consultant to the Cogent bull stud and a retained advisor to the Genus Reproductive Management Programme (RMS) in the UK. Mike is a patient and skilled trainer and an excellent speaker.

James Allcock BVM&S CertCHP MRCVS

After qualifying from Edinburgh in 1988, James was one of the first veterinary surgeons to complete his Certificate in Cattle Health & Production while working in Practice. In 1997 he joined Intervet as Livestock Technical Manager in the UK and subsequently became Sales Manager for the livestock business. He joined Lambert Leonard & May in 2006 in a business consultancy role where he regularly contributes to local training and educational initiatives for farmers and veterinary surgeons.

We are happy to provide consultancy services at relatively short notice and can be very flexible in the format of training or support services required.

In the first instance please contact James Allcock on 0044 1270 781250
or e-mail james@lambertleonardmay.co.uk